

Giving local phone companies sole rights to supply broadband access without regulation would return us to a time when one company would have complete control over the market. My ISP is already charged more for my DSL line than our local phone company charges the public.

I urge you to keep the current regulations in place